It lends a dart to forrow,
My once lov'd Cot, and happy lot
But loads with grief to morrow.
My William's buried in the deep,
And I am fore oppreſs'd
Now all the day I ſit and weep;
All night I know no reſt.
I dream of waves, and Sailors' graves,
In horrid wrecks I ſee
And when I hear the midnight wind,
All comfort flies my troubled mind,

Her mind is unsullied as new fallen Snow,
Yet she's lively as tints, from young Iris's bow,
As clear as the stream, and as deep as the flood,
She tho' witty is wise, and tho' beautiful, good,
The sweets that each virtue, or grace has in store,
She culls as the Bee does, the sweets from each flow'r,

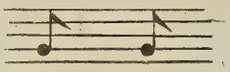
At length she grew weary and sat by a Brook,



Where the Shepherd she lov'd was a baiting his hook,
Unnotic'd he saw her and hear'd her complain,
His heart was inflam'd to allay her ſoft pain,
So ſweetly she ſung that her voice reach'd the grove,
Each bird on the ſpray could have told her 'twas love,

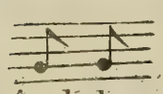
He took her white hand and he call'd her his love ,



And he swore that for ever he conſtant would prove ,
The poor ſimple maiden his tale did believe,
But found her falſe Strephon was born to decieve ,
She long pin'd the loſs of her falſe hearted ſwain ,
Untill welcome death put an end to her pain ,

Andantino
Life let us cherish, while yet the ta-per glows, and the freſh flowret pluck, ere it close; Why are we fond of toil and care, why choose the rank-ling thorn to wear, and heed-less by the lil-ly stray, which blossoms in our way,

When clouds obſcure the atmosphere,
And forked lightnings rend the Air,
The ſun reſumes his ſilver crest,
And ſmiles adown the west.

The genial ſeasons ſoon are o'er,
Then let us ere we quit this ſhore,
Contentment ſeek it is life's zeſt,
The ſunſhine of the breast.

Away with every toil and care,
And cease the rankling thorn to wear,
With manful hearts life's conflict meet,
Till death sounds the retreat.

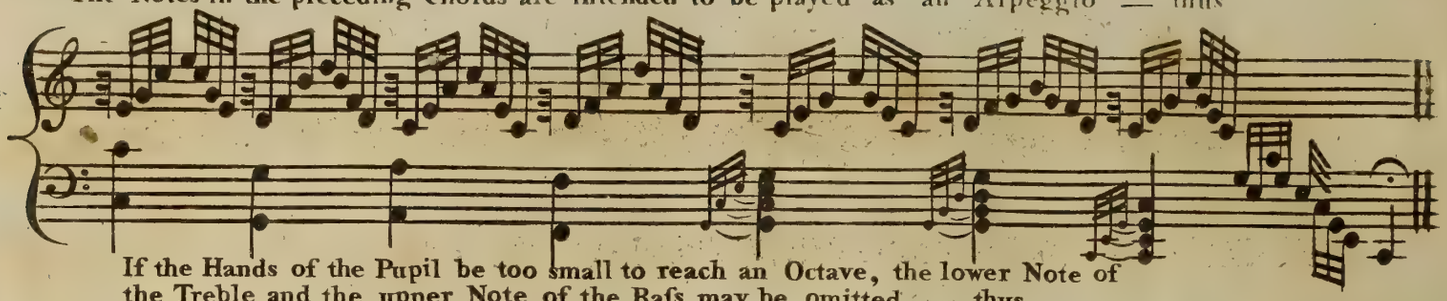
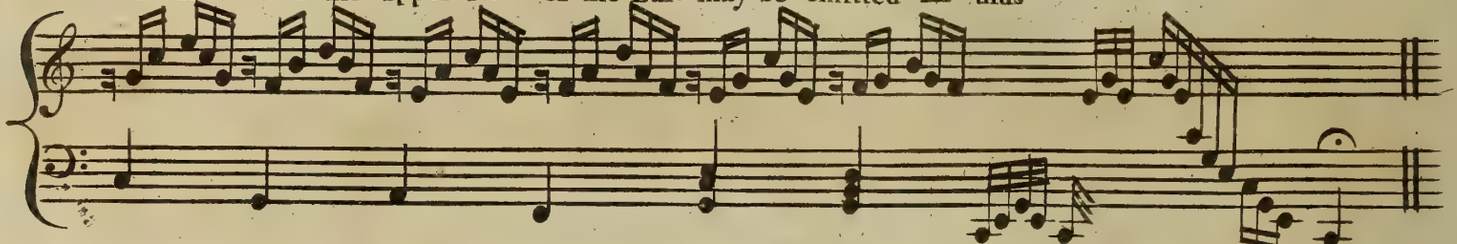
The Notes in the preceding Chords are intended to be played as an Arpeggio — thus



If the Hands of the Pupil be too small to reach an Octave, the lower Note of the Treble and the upper Note of the Baſs may be omitted — thus



When the Learner is ſufficiently advanced, the Preludes shou'd be lengthened by prefixing a Run to any of the Sets of Chords in the foregoing Pages, preserving the Arpeggio as in Example 1 thus —

A Still greater variety may be obtained, by transposing from one Key to another the Run, or the Set of Chords, or both, as for instance, the Run in C may be transposed to G, and played with the Chords of G, or vice versa, or the whole Prelude in C may be transposed to G, &c .

The Arpeggios also may be occasionally varied by changing the motion of the notes in the Chords — thus
